Edward O'Brien of South Norwalk, who fertuerly lived in Derby and who has been visiting in that city after just getting home from China, told some of his experiences and observations in that country to an Ansonia Sentinel reporter. He was located at Harkow, in the province of Hu-Peh, about 700 miles up the Yangtze-kiang. He was in the employ of a British-American tobacco company, controlling for the control of the tobacco obtainess in the awakening China. Mr. O'Brien has not a very high opinion of the Chinese, whether the particular Chinese under observation belongs to the Mandarin or the coolie class. They differ larsely he found through the fact that the former were educated, and therefore a liftle more slick in doing business, and not any higher morally. The Chinaman's desire seems to be fo make something off the other fellow, and he will make it if he gets half a chance. It may be surmised from this that Mr. O'Brien does not think there is very much hope of China amounting to much and he says he has fornied his opinion from what traveling men who have been all over the country have to say about the present conditions and theway they accept the tenefings that missionaries take to them. They are more on the make that on improvement merally, mentally or physically. In fact, they would rather get 'cash' from a foreigner than hear about his neck system for acquiring perpetual happiness, unless by listening they are to get something that they can gamble away.

disposal by the middle of the summer, or as soon as the local division of the Housatonic Power company gan get its new water gas set installed at the gas works in Harbor avenue. At present, the company only makes coal gas, but with the new apparatus installed for making what is known as water gas, a mixture will be made of the two products which is far superior to the present coal gas supply. The contract has been let for the installation of the new apparatus necessary for the production of the new gas, and plans are being gotten out for a large structure to be built as an addition to the present gas works. the present gas works.
